LearningSuccess Coach Certification
Ventura, CA

Level 1: February 13-15

Level 4 Session 2: Feb 8-9

"I cannot thank you enough for such a powerful 3-day program. I arrived with the intention of learning something new. I returned with a holistic sense of who I am as a mom, professional, and learning being! That is so cool. I am a believer and you can count me on your side as we become change agents to our children."
Sonja Montiel, College Confidence

The Key to LearningSuccess!

"Discover Your Child's Learning Style is a book you need. Period. It has more potential to improve your child's education and your family relationships than any other book I have

LearningSuccess™ Institute

The leader in learning styles assessment and personal blueprints for success...Change your life or the life of a child today!

Monthly E-Mail Newsletter - January, 2008

Happy New Year!

We know that we are now well into the new year and we hope that your goals and dreams for this year are on their way to being fulfilled!

Read on to find out how to share your stories of Learning Success and inspire others to go for their dreams...

Mariaemma & Victoria

The Power & Magic of LearningSuccess!

We are compiling a book of LearningSuccess stories and would love to have you share your story!

We want to spread our philosophy of successful learning to all parents, teachers, students, and adults. Your stories will show the power of learning styles for teaching and learning. Your stories will inspire others to believe in themselves and their children, and to bring out the star in every person.

What kinds of stories are we looking for? If you have experienced successful learning without pain or trauma for yourself, your child, or your students, because of one of our products or services, please tell us about it.

If you have experienced LearningSuccess because you've read our book (Discover Your Child's Learning Style), taken our A Self-Portrait Online Learning Style Profile, taken a workshop or training with us, worked with one of our LearningSuccess Coaches for individual consultation or homeschool support, or used any of our other products or services, we want to hear from you!

Don't worry if you are not a "good" writer-we have set up a form to guide you through the process. Just fill out the form at:

www.learningsuccesscoach.com/Merchant/successstories.html

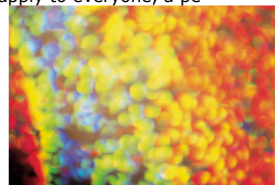

We are looking forward to receiving your stories!

LearningSuccess Tip: Effects of Color

The effect of color on mood and activity has been studied for years, especially by media marketers. Color plays a big part in advertising, and marketers know which colors will get us to buy, to stay longer, to spend more, etc. We know that some colors depress and others energize, some are soothing and others make us feel rattled. Some colors slow us down, and some make us feel hyper.

Besides the general color principles that seem to apply to everyone, a person's favorite colors can also dramatically affect mood and activity.

When we are surrounded by our favorite colors we tend to think more positively and feel more motivated. When surrounded by colors we don't like, the opposite happens, and we can actually feel restless, upset, distracted, unhappy, even angry. Just as with any of the other elements of environment, different people are more or less sensitive to color.

At home, parents can help their children decide on how to incorporate favorite colors in designated areas. For the classroom, children can learn to buy school supplies in favorite colors. Will having your favorite color around guarantee passing the test or getting an A on a paper? No, but color can substantially change mood and outlook, and it's one more piece of the puzzle that can contribute to a more positive learning experience. Talking to your child about color is also another way of letting him know that you are listening and that his needs and preferences matter.

Children (and adults) can learn to:

- Add favorite colors (to the extent possible) to a personal room, study space, ever read, with the sole exception of the Bible." Mary Pride

LearningSuccess™ Writing!

"...I actually had one student in tears because he could not write his essay. Three days later I was teaching his whole class about mapping. He simply amazed me. He was writing! He had no idea that he was writing a paragraph but he was and he was so excited to be doing it. This works!"

LearningSuccess Coach Training

Our next Level 1 Training is coming up February 13-15. Register now - you have until January 31 to get the early registration discount!

Parents, do you want less struggling over homework and school issues and more family harmony?

Homeschoolers, do you want peace of mind knowing you are giving your kids what they need to learn and thrive?

Teachers, do you want to go beyond "no child left behind" to true learning success for ALL of your students?

Did you know that most kids are not ready developmentally to read or write until they are 8 or 9 years old-that the muscles of their eyes are not ready to track print, and that their wrists and hands are not ready for pencils?

Did you know that at least 60% of the population are picture and hands-on learners?

Did you know that people who are not print learners will never learn to spell by writing words over and over again?

You will learn how to work with your child's or student's natural gifts and dispositions, rather than applying dysfunctional labels such as ADD, Dyslexic, Hyperactive, Learning Disabled, or even Average!

Come and find out how to be your child's or student's LearningSuccess Coach!

"Awesome weekend - you blended the best of the best in educational techniques and communication skills. It's a clear path toward successful, compassionate and child-centered education all rolled into one."

Rachelle Wafer, teacher, Laurel Springs School

"I feel so enriched by my three days with you both!"

Sally Van Der Kar, mom and teacher

"Victoria and Mariaemma are amazing! Every school, parent and person who works with kids should use their book and assessments."

Suzanne Lopez, therapist

"I received some great teaching techniques but, more importantly, I realized that learning and evaluation don't have to pit one student against another. Everyone can succeed without diminishing the other people with whom they learn."

Heather Havens, Assessment Coordinator

"I have already learned so many valuable things that I plan to use immediately. I can't wait for the next session!! I have a very strong feeling that this is going to open up a whole new career path for me, one that I never would have considered before. Thank you for your ideas, your presentations, your encouraging words and your warmth."

Helene McCabe, public school mom
